Shine Together

Creating Art & Joyful Connection

In these turbulent times, we are all experiencing hardship. The pandemic, social protests, economic collapse, wildfires, and political division are unprecedented. Many of us are feeling overwhelmed, anxious, sad, uninspired, and afraid for the future.

Dear Ones, you have every right to feel like this. But please know that you are not alone. Together, we can create healing, hope, unity, magic, and a new future for our world.

To create the new world we long for, we must reignite our joy, gather our strength, heal our hearts, reclaim our power, and clarify our vision.

I ask you:

What kind of world do you want to help create?

The wound is where the light enters.

Simone Gordon--The Black Fairy Godmother

“For those who don’t know about Simone’s work, she is an extraordinary force for goodness and generosity in this world. Every single day on Instagram, she hosts small, intimate, crowd-sourced fundraisers to directly help women and families in need. Simone was once homeless, the survivor of an abusive marriage, trying to survive on the streets with a special needs child. Resourceful and determined to save her child’s life, she sought help from every available charity and government program that was within her reach. But she found that the wait times for help were often days to weeks—and she needed food and shelter NOW.

Once she managed to get her own life stabilized, Simone made it a goal to always be available to help others who are in the same emergency position that she had once been in. The money that we as a community help her to raise every day on Instagram goes immediately to women (who are often in domestic violence emergencies) and their children. If somebody needs a roof over their head tonight, Simone will make sure that they have a roof over their head tonight (and food and diapers for the children, too.)

For those of you who don’t follow @theblackfairygodmotherofficial on social media, I invite you to enter into her world of compassion and direct humanitarian action. Together, with the smallest of donations, we can help Simone perform extraordinary acts of emergency assistance every day. Join this community of helpers. It will be good for your heart!”
